

Hackney: A Place for Everyone

Residents are being asked to take part in a 'Question Time' style debate about the future of the borough on 18 March at the City Academy, Homerton

JOIN THE DEBATE

RESIDENTS are being encouraged to take part in a 'Question Time' style debate about the future of the borough, which will feature a panel of local experts.

The event on 18 March will give people the chance to air their views and ask questions about the challenges that Hackney faces over the coming years.

It is being held to launch a major year-long resident engagement programme, during which the Council aims to talk to thousands of people about their experience of the rapid social and economic changes that have affected the borough in recent times.

The panel will be chaired by Guardian journalist and long-time Hackney resident Dave Hill. He will be joined by resident and Open University academic Melissa Butcher, who has worked closely with young people in Hackney to research their sense of place, identity and belonging using film and theatre; barrister Tunde Okewale, who was brought up in Hackney and took part in the commission that examined the 2011 riots; resident and policy maker Robbie de Santos, who is a trustee of Generation Rent, a campaigning organisation representing private tenants; and the Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe.

Mayor Pipe said: "So much has changed in Hackney in recent years. We want to give local people the chance to share their thoughts and feelings about the change, and this debate is just the start of that."

"Much of the change has been positive, but Hackney faces many challenges: an affordable housing crisis, a growing population, and massive central government cuts to local public service budgets. This is the beginning of a big conversation with residents about how we tackle all of that."

Panel chair, Dave Hill, added: "I have lived in Hackney for many years and all my children have been to Hackney schools. I think many people, like me, care very much about the future of this place, and I think this is a debate that is long overdue. I hope that lots of people will want to join us for what promises to be a very interesting debate."

The event, which will be held at the City Academy, Homerton, from 7-8.30pm on 18 March, is open to all residents, although numbers are limited to 200.

To book, visit: <http://hackneydebate.eventbrite.co.uk> Those wishing to ask a question, will be asked to register it when booking a place.

Hackney Today is published by the London Borough of Hackney. It has a print run of 108,000 copies and is delivered free to every home and business in the borough. The Council uses it to communicate public service information to residents. It is published fortnightly in order to carry statutory advertising, such as planning and traffic notices, which is cheaper for the taxpayer than using another local paper. The law does not allow for statutory notices to be published solely online or in a less frequent publication.

The paper's official, door-to-door delivery is 90,821 copies per issue, according to Audit Bureau of Circulations (ABC)

Cllr Philip Glanville, Cabinet Member for Housing, with the Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe

THE Council is calling on the next government to reform the private-rented housing system to improve standards and reign in rogue landlords, rent hikes and letting agency fees, and protect struggling families.

It has laid out a 10-point plan which would be of great benefit to the millions of private renters across the country. An online petition has also been launched for residents to sign, which will be presented to the new government after the General Election in May.

“There is now a clearer case than ever for reform of the private rented sector”

The 10 recommendations are: inflation-capped rent rises to ensure greater security for tenants; longer tenancies; stopping retaliatory evictions; fast-tracking licensing schemes, by cutting red tape for councils; exploring further incentives for responsible landlords; creating a national quality kitemark; establishing a public register of landlords and properties; a national ban on rogue landlords; costs transparency, making it mandatory for landlords to publish related costs of a property, such as utility bills; and improving safety, including mandatory installation of fire and carbon monoxide detectors and annual electrical tests.

Cllr Philip Glanville,

Case study: Windowless studio flat for £900 a month

ON 10 February, Cllr Glanville accompanied Council officers investigating conditions in a privately-rented flat off Chatsworth Road.

The windowless studio flat (pictured), for which £900 a month rent was being paid, was found to fail minimum space standards, as well as breaching electrical and fire safety regulations.

Following the visit, the landlord is now working with the Council to improve the conditions.

If you know of a property that may need inspection, call: 020 8356 4866; or e-mail: privatesectorhousing@hackney.gov.uk

Cabinet Member for Housing, said: “A generation of people in this country are being priced out of the property market, and forced into private rented accommodation.

“Children and families are being uprooted every six months by insecure tenancies and beyond-inflation rent increases. There is now a clearer case than ever for fundamental reform of the private rented sector, to allow individuals and families to make secure homes for themselves.

“Everyone in Hackney and across the country deserves to live in good quality accommodation, and while the Council does what it can locally within existing legislation, we are calling on the next government to take these steps to help improve conditions both for tenants and for landlords.”

Since 2011, private rents in Hackney have risen by 21 per cent, outstripping inflation. The annual income needed to afford the average rent for a one bedroom home in the borough is now £42,937.

A review by The Living in Hackney Scrutiny Commission found that the number of privately renting households has doubled in Hackney in the past decade.

Private renters campaign group Digs presented the commission with a report of evidence collected from Hackney tenants.

One renter told of a letting agent revaluing a home in Hackney Wick with a 50 per cent rent increase. Another said: “We spend 50 per cent of our income on rent. We plan to stay here until the summer, when I will leave my teaching job and move somewhere cheaper.”

HACKNEY is preparing to roll out a 20 mph speed limit on all its main roads.

Following the introduction of 20mph limits on residential roads in 2008, traffic accidents plummeted by up to 50 per cent. Now the Council hopes to further improve safety by extending the speed restrictions to its main road network later this year.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "As London's top walking and cycling borough this 20mph roll-out makes sense. Lower speeds will see a calmer and safer environment, and we hope to have more walking and playing outside, which in turn will have a positive impact on health and community.

"Speed limits and 20mph zones have already cut casualties on our residential streets but we can always do more to prevent accidents and improve the quality of life for our residents."

Research shows that people hit by cars travelling at 35mph have a 50 per cent chance of survival, those struck at 30mph have an 80 per cent chance, but the survival rate jumps to 97 per cent when hit at 20mph.

Tom Platt, London Policy Manager for pedestrian charity Living Streets, said: "Hackney's roll-out of 20mph is good news for everyone who lives, works or visits the borough."

"Councils across London are now recognising that lower speed limits significantly improve the quality of our streets, reducing road danger and creating more inviting places to walk and spend time."

The limit will not apply to Ruckholt Road or any Transport for London red routes which make up around 8.5 per cent of the borough's road network.

Signs and road markings will be used to alert motorists to the new limit. Enforcement will be carried out by the police.

There will be a statutory consultation on the 20mph roll-out launched on 9 March. Representations should be sent to the Assistant Director (Public Realm) at the address below by 30 March.

Man arrested for inciting racial hatred in Stamford Hill

A MAN said to be planning to hold an anti-Semitic rally in Stamford Hill has been arrested on suspicion of inciting racial hatred.

The 22-year-old, from Yeovil in Somerset, was detained by police on 13 February after allegedly trying to organise a march to 'liberate' Stamford Hill.

He was also questioned on suspicion of racially aggravated harassment and malicious communications, said to be towards a Jewish MP. The man was released on bail until the end of March.

Deputy Mayor of Hackney, Cllr Sophie Linden, said: "We are proud of the rich and diverse communities that have made Hackney their home. Anti-Semitism is unacceptable and has no place in our borough."

Chair of The North London Muslim Community Centre (NLMCC), Mohammed Munaf Zeena, added: "The NLMCC expresses its unreserved solidarity with the Jewish community over this unjustifiable provocation."

We and Hackney's Muslim community and organisations will stand shoulder-to-shoulder with our Jewish neighbours and friends to ensure that their faith, religious, ethnic, cultural and social identity remains protected and respected."

Man given Hackney's first Criminal Behaviour Order

A MAN who targeted vulnerable residents and took over their homes has been given Hackney's first Criminal Behaviour Order (CBO).

Desmond Rodney, 38, from Dalston, had preyed on a number of Hackney Homes and housing association tenants over the past five years. He would befriend them and abuse that relationship by taking over their homes, using it as his own.

The Council worked with the housing associations involved to obtain the evidence necessary to remove him from the properties indefinitely.

On 3 February, Desmond appeared at Snaresbrook Crown Court for breaching an Anti-Social Behaviour Order that had been in place since 2012. He had entered a part of the borough he was banned from and was also charged with possession of Class A drugs. The Council and police went on to apply for a CBO to prevent him entering any residential property in Hackney other than an address specified in the order. Deputy Mayor, Cllr Sophie Linden, said: "If anyone is approached by or feels threatened by Desmond they should contact the police or Council wardens."

Nature spot is a rail gem

Volunteers have turned a dumping ground into a valuable haven for wildlife

DID you know that Hackney harbours a magnificent secret garden? Tucked away in Stamford Hill is a little-known green gem punching above its weight biodiversity-wise.

The East and West Bank Nature Reserve, between Dunsmure Road and Stamford Hill, flanks just 2,000m of the Liverpool Street to Enfield train line, but it is hugely significant.

The railway cutting, which is jointly owned by Network Rail and the Council, is home to about 40 species of birds, including tawny owls, peregrine falcons, nightingales and greater spotted woodpeckers, and 70 species of plants and flowers. Incredibly, between five and 10 per cent of all the borough's mature trees grow along this tiny strip and, in parts, Good King Henry – once a common vegetable like asparagus but now a rare species – can be seen poking through the undergrowth. The reserve has been designated a Site of Importance for Nature Conservation since 2002.

“It is a valuable green lung for the local community and a bird nature reserve of exceptional importance”

John Yeudall, co-founder of the East and West Bank User Group, said: “It is a valuable green lung for the local community and a bird nature reserve of exceptional importance.”

It is an incredible achievement, considering a little over a decade ago the reserve was an abandoned piece of land that was ‘badly littered’ and supported limited plant, bird, insect and animal life.

The amazing turnaround is thanks to the doggedness of the user group which in 2002 offered to help the Council and Network Rail manage the site. They are a hardcore group of six, who have toiled, planted and championed the land.

“We turned a rubbish dump into a bird reserve,” said member Kate Griffin. Adding: “Residents now have a soundtrack to their lives, sometimes so loud you can hardly believe it’s real birds and not a high-volume recording.”

The group, helped by about 50 residents on their mailing list, continues to play guardian to the land, planting native trees and shrubs and bidding for funding, including a recent grant from the Council.

The site is generally closed to the public because of its proximity to a working railway line, but the group holds monthly activity days, usually on the first Sunday of the month, which allow visitors to get a glimpse inside this green oasis.

John adds: “We also organise annual tree and bird walks, led by experts, and these normally attract a big crowd.”

The group is always looking for more volunteers to help plant, water and build owl, hedgehog and insect homes, put up notices and clear rubbish.

Bishopsgate Goods Yard: Alternative Proposal

Hammerson's proposal for Bishopsgate Goods Yard (sketched out in light brown) and the Council's low-rise alternative proposal (in dark brown)

Bishopsgate proposal

A CAMPAIGN has been launched against a 48-storey luxury development, which threatens to plunge parts of Shoreditch into darkness.

It is feared that a proposal for Bishopsgate Goods Yard, put forward by property developers Hammerson, threatens the unique character of the historic area. The two high rise towers will be nearly the same height as One Canada Square at Canary Wharf.

The Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, is concerned that the height will have a detrimental effect on local tech businesses and the character of the area.

“The repercussions of this development could... lead to the fragmentation of the local cluster of design and tech firms”

Mayor Pipe said: “These towers are completely out of scale for Shoreditch. These luxury flats, which are well beyond the reach of ordinary Londoners, will cast a shadow over the whole of Tech City, and threaten to damage the local, creative economy.”

The Council has worked with a local firm of architects to produce an alternative, viable scheme which would be more in keeping with the area and provide much needed employment space.

The Mayor of London has indicated that he supports Hammerson's original plans so he may well intervene in the matter.

Mayor Pipe added: “The repercussions of this development could be so severe that they lead to the fragmentation of the local cluster of design and tech firms, leading to the loss of thousands of local jobs, and damage to London's reputation as a global leader in these industries.

“I've written to businesses and residents throughout Tech City to alert them to these plans and to urge them to write to the Mayor of London, asking him to withdraw his support for these damaging plans.”

Pop-up choir for the vulnerable receives a £10K lottery grant

A POP-UP choir that welcomes marginalised people has been awarded a Big Lottery grant of £10,000.

Rev Niall Weir, Rector of St Paul's West Hackney, founded the Cantignorus Chorus in 2013 in order to bring together the community and various charities that use the church hall during the week. Groups include North London Action for the Homeless, Narcotics Anonymous, and the Open Doors charity for vulnerable women.

Rev Weir said: “I'm so pleased that we've got another opportunity to bring this remarkable group of people back together for more music-making. What better way to get us out of our small corners and into the wonderful, wider world that we are so fortunate to have here in Hackney?”

Over 120 people joined the choir in 2013, including homeless men and women, recovering drug addicts and the elderly or isolated. They ultimately recorded and released a single, ‘Holding Out A Helping Hand’.

Choir member Heather Richardson said: “This is one of the best things I have done for a while, reminding me of who and what is most important and valuable in the community in which I live.”

The latest grant enabled the choir to reform on 4 February. Rev Weir aims to rehearse a new song, ‘It's My Life’ for seven weeks before recording it in March, and releasing it in order to raise money for the charities and organisations represented in the chorus.

The Run Hackney 5K is set to return on 9 May with 2,000 free spaces

2,000 free places in Run Hackney 5K up for grabs

IF the idea of a marathon makes you want to run away rather than run for miles, then a shorter, five kilometre race might be what you need.

The Run Hackney 5K is returning this year on 9 May with 2,000 free places up for grabs. It has been designed for new runners, and features a flat route and fun atmosphere, starting and finishing on Hackney Marshes.

The race will kick start a weekend of running in the borough, with the Run Hackney half marathon, Schools' Challenge and Company Challenge all taking place the following day, on 10 May.

Pioneered by the Council, and sponsored by Vitality, the events aims to bring the community together and encourage people to exercise their way towards a healthier lifestyle.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: “We are delighted to be offering the free Run Hackney 5K to the borough for the second time. We hope that some of this year's 5K runners might even think about signing up for next year's half marathon.”

Registration for the event opens at 9am on 23 February. For more info, or to register, visit: www.runhackney.com

Below are just some of the objects on display as part of the Hackney@50 exhibition

DID YOU KNOW?

1. Rock against Racism poster for an open-air music festival in Victoria Park, 1976; 2. The Rio presents badge, 1980-1985;

3. Brass tiffin brought to London from India in 1946; 4. Keep the Hackney Empire Open badge, 1986; 5. The Samuel Beckett pub sign, late 1980s; 6. Hackney changes map by illustrator Jane Smith; 7. Nautilus fossil found in Stoke Newington; 8. Diaries by Victorian teenager; 9. Wooden Thai elephant

Celebrate Hackney at 50

A VICTORIAN teenager's diary and an ancient fossil excavated in Stoke Newington are just two of the fascinating items in a new exhibition called 'Hackney@50: The People's Choice'.

In 1965, the London boroughs of Hackney, Shoreditch and Stoke Newington were merged to form the Hackney we know today. In April, the borough will be 50 years-old and, to mark this milestone, 50 objects illustrating 50 stories are now on display at Hackney Museum, as part of a conversation.

Fifty local individuals, organisations, groups and schools from across the borough have selected an object – either from the museum's collection or lent their own – to offer an insight into what Hackney means to them.

The diaries of a Victorian teenager tells the story of 16-year-old Lizzie Hudson who lived in Dalston between 1871 and 1879. Her words give visitors to the exhibition a fascinating glimpse into what being a young woman in Hackney in the 1870s was like.

An old pub sign, from The Samuel Beckett, which existed in the late 1980s and early 1990s in Stoke Newington, is also on display. The pub was famous as a live music venue for punk bands.

“It is a fascinating glimpse into Hackney's past through myriad objects that have significance to the people who chose them”

The Stoke Newington Peace Quilt, 1985

Other objects include a brass tiffin brought to Hackney from India in 1946; a 'peace quilt', made in 1985 reflecting anxieties about the Cold War; and a Thai wooden elephant that has lived in Yum Yum Thai restaurant in Stoke Newington since 1992.

Restaurant proprietor Atique Choudhury chose this exhibit. He said: "This elephant comes from Chiang Mai in Thailand but has been in our restaurant since 1992. Children used to play on its back then and now they've all grown up and bring their own children here."

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, added: "This charming exhibition tells the story of Hackney at 50 from the perspective of the people who live, work and go to school here."

"It is a fascinating glimpse into Hackney's past through myriad objects that all have significance to the people who chose them. We want everyone to get involved with the exhibition by telling us what item they'd choose to reflect what Hackney means to them."

Hackney Museum wants residents to 'join the conversation' by visiting the exhibition and suggesting an object they would put on display, or tweet ideas using #Hackney50.

The great Hackney bike off

Cycling Club Hackney is made up of people from all ages and backgrounds

CYCLING Club Hackney was born on 28 November 2007; four months after the world's greatest bicycle race, the Tour de France, set off from London's Hyde Park.

It was no coincidence. The sight of 200 professional riders speeding along the streets of his home city had caught the imagination of Council youth worker Keir Apperley.

"I thought some of Hackney's youngsters could benefit from getting out of town on regular training rides, just like I did whilst growing up in Hackney during the 1980s," said Keir.

"At first I was considering referring our young cyclists to a club in Walthamstow, but it occurred to me: why not create a cycling club for Hackney?"

Seven years later and Cycling Club Hackney boasts some 250 members, both young people and adults, with Keir as its manager and head coach.

Members' achievements include winning medals at the London Youth Games; an adult team win in French four-day stage race, The Tour l'Ain; and having two of the club's young riders, Alex Peters and Tao Geoghegan-Hart, snapped up by professional teams.

"Alex and Tao have both been winners of a Hackney Sports Award," says Keir. "Their success encourages and inspires our next crop of riders to aim high as well."

A steady influx of young riders has allowed the club to thrive over the years, with waves of

"Hackney is a recognised national hotspot for cycling... people are looking to do more on two wheels"

interest peaking following the opening of Lee Valley VeloPark, inside Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, and after the Tour de France passed through the borough last year.

Keir says: "Hackney is a recognised national hotspot for cycling, so it's no surprise that people are looking to do more on two wheels."

"Membership is made up of people from diverse backgrounds and professions who are proud to wear the club colours and promote Hackney as a place where cycling is valued highly."

The club and Council have worked together since 2008, when Keir began managing the borough cycling team for the London Youth Games.

The legacy of that commitment can be seen in the success of collaborations, including with the ever popular Hackney Primary Schools Cycling League.

So what does the future hold? Since last year the club is targeting, with financial help from the Council, more would-be riders who might not otherwise access the sport. "Cycle sport in the UK has become something of an elite pastime, but it does not have to be," says Keir, who would like to see more Hackney's businesses getting involved by sponsoring 'local bike champions'.

Adding: "The club is looking to support new young riders from hard-pressed backgrounds to realise their ambitions to do more cycling, be it sports, commuting or riding for leisure."

The club meets at Olympus Square, Nightingale Estate, Clapton, every Sunday from 8am. The youth group meets on Saturdays at 9.30am.

DID YOU KNOW?

The (literal) ups and downs of learning how to ride a bike

By Dila Tumer

“WHAT? You don’t know how to ride a bike?” Unfortunately, I have grown very accustomed to hearing this question; it’s as if everyone in Hackney was born a cyclist except me.

Truth be told, before 7 February I didn’t care for it much either.

‘What’s the point?’ I always asked myself. ‘A bus is just as good as a bike, maybe even better.’ Boy, was I wrong.

My editor wanted me to try something new and suggested I attend one of the Council’s free cycle training sessions. I was very pleased to see that a variety of lessons, both on and off roads, are offered for a range of levels – including complete beginner.

When I first arrived at Hackney Downs Park and met David, my instructor, I felt relieved – he is one of the nicest and most patient people I have met.

Before I actually made contact with the bike we went through some quick checks: what to wear when on a bike, what to look out for, and how to use the brakes. He also asked me about my long-term and short-term goals for cycling.

Photos: Hannah Lucy Jones

I told him that by the end of the lesson I would like to be able to ride a bike, to get on and off. My long-term goal is to eventually commute by bike, going to and from school.

David first showed me how to get on and off. Now, I know this sounds simple, but it’s more technical than it sounds.

I had to hold down the brakes, lower the bike and get on, using my other leg to balance so that I didn’t fall.

Once I had mastered the art of getting on and off the bike, it was time to practise my balancing skills.

I was worried that I would hurt both David and myself as he was holding the handles while I pedalled, but as the session went on I grew more and more confident.

As soon as David thought I could pedal on my own he supported me gently by my shoulders, and then let me ride on my own, although he did stay close by in case I needed help.

After a shaky start, I managed to stay on the bike and it was one of the best feelings: moving without walking. I never expected to enjoy it so much!

For more on free cycling training with the Council, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/cycle-training; or call: 020 8356 6594.

Playing it straight

By Hattie Worsley

YOU could say that Hackney gave me my first big break," says playwright Alecky Blythe.

"I realised I wanted to work in theatre because of a teacher, Mrs Blythe, who was head of speech and drama at my junior school. She had such an influence on me that I went on to adopt her surname. I was inspired to be an actor but, after graduating, no one would give me any work so I decided to make my own."

Alecky had been, in her own words, 'scrabbling around on the fringes' for about seven years when she enrolled in a workshop run by Mark Wing-Davey.

A Hackney resident himself, he taught the technique for which Alecky, 15 years on, is now famous; recording testimonies from real people. Plays are built around their words and, when performed, those words are played to the actors through headphones and recited aloud for the audience to hear.

"After the workshop I asked Mark if I could use the method to write my own play," says Alecky. "The idea was just to make a piece to show off my acting skills to agents and then maybe get a part in 'The Bill' and I'd be off!"

It didn't quite happen that way, however. She continues: "I had just moved to Hackney and heard about a siege going on locally. I thought it might be an interesting setting to explore the idea of fear for a piece of theatre. When I arrived I got caught up in an entire story unravelling around me."

The siege was caused by gangster Eli Hall, who, at the end of 2002, barricaded himself inside a bedsit on Marvin Street in what was to become one of the longest armed sieges in British history. Alecky arrived at the police cordon and began to talk to, and record, members of the crowd that had gathered, eventually securing an interview with the hostage, Paul Okere. The result was her first play, 'Come Out Eli', which was staged at the Arcola theatre in Dalston.

"It didn't get me an acting agent," laughs Alecky, "but it did get me one for my writing, and I decided to run with it."

Plays that followed include 'Cruising', 'The Girlfriend Experience', 'Do We Look Like Refugees?', 'Where Have I Been All My Life?' and musical 'London Road', which was named Best Musical at the Critics Circle Awards after it was staged at the National Theatre.

Last year she returned to Hackney for inspiration with 'Little Revolution' which focused on the effects of the 2011 riots. Alecky took her camera and microphone to document what was happening in and around Clarence Road, when the civil unrest began.

The police had kettled rioters into the road, which runs through Pembury Estate. There was only one shop on the street being looted, and she began to take pictures.

"I accidentally caught two looters on camera as they came out of the shop, laden down with crates of beer. They confronted me, with their hoods up, and demanded to go through the photos on my camera. They were actually quite polite but it was kind of scary..."

That shop was to become the focus of 'Little Revolution'. When she went back, a couple of days later, she discovered that neighbours had started an action fund to help its owner, a Tamil refugee called Siva, to reopen it.

The play documents the process of a community coming together, but also reveals the cracks within. It looks at the reactions of the mums on the estate, its older generations and the wealthy residents of Clapton Square.

"The shop serves people from both sides of the street," she explains. "The beautiful square of million-pound town houses on one side and, on the other, the poorer Pembury Estate."

Alecky continues: "Hackney has served me well! I think there's something about the mix of people here that is inherently good for drama. The richness of its community, and some of the tensions within that. I'm working on my next piece and some of those characters live in Hackney too."

Let's go swishing!

What is swishing?

Swishing is another word for a clothes swap, a frock exchange or shwopping. Whatever you want to call it, it's a great way to have a clear out and get a whole new wardrobe without spending any money.

The idea is to get together with friends or family to swap clothes, accessories and shoes. This is how it works:

Step 1: decide who to invite, a venue (whose home to use), and a date that suits everyone.

Step 2: ask everyone to look through their wardrobes for good quality items they no longer wear (or have never worn!).

Step 3: ask everyone to bring their pre-loved items to the party and let the swishing begin. The aim is to find new homes for all the donated items.

Did you know? The average UK household owns around £4,000 worth of clothes, 30% of which have not been worn for a year.

Free swishing party pack

If you'd like to find out more download a free swishing party pack at wiseuptowaste.org.uk

The pack has information to help you plan your party, ideas for how to make it fun and what to do with any leftover items. There are pull-out items too including a party invite and a template for making your own gift tags.

Did you know? We throw away approximately one million tonnes of clothing a year – 50% of which ends up in landfill.

HOLD a SWISHING PARTY

SWISHING (CLOTHES SWAPPING) IS A WAY TO HAVE A CLEAR OUT AND GET A WHOLE NEW WARDROBE WITHOUT SPENDING ANY MONEY

TO WASTE

THE GREEN GENIE

Green tips for the spring

SPRING is just around the corner! Here are the Green Genie's top tips for a greener Hackney this spring:

Get ready to start gardening: The green waste from your garden is recyclable so don't put it in with your general rubbish. The Council collects garden waste every two weeks and provides free wheeled bins. The green waste is turned into compost which is used in Hackney's parks, allotments and gardens. Order bins or bags and check your collection dates at: hackney.gov.uk/brown-bin; or call: 020 8356 6688.

Pick up some free compost: If you want some free compost to help your garden grow greener, go to South Millfields Park on 22 March. Bring some bags and take as much as you like from 11am to 3pm.

Clear out your wardrobe: If your hats, coats and gloves have seen their last winter, take them to a textile and clothing bank. There are almost 100 of them in the borough. For more info, visit: hackney.gov.uk/recycling-on-the-go Recycle your electronics for free: Thousands of tonnes of waste electrical and electronic equipment ends up in landfill every year. But 123 Recycle for Free will collect all your electrical items and either reuse or recycle them. To book a collection call: 0800 085 1050.

MORE INFO

To ask the Genie a question, e-mail: recycling@hackney.gov.uk, or write to: Green Genie, Recycling, Keltan House, 89-115 Mare Street, E8 4RU. For more information on recycling in the borough call: 020 8356 6688, or visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/recycling

Fairtrade Fortnight

AN award-winning documentary film about Ethiopia's coffee industry will be screened for free to mark Fairtrade Fortnight.

'Black Gold', a 2006 film which exposes the multi-billion dollar coffee industry and traces one Ethiopian man's fight for a fair price for his produce, will be shown at Hackney Picturehouse on 1 March from 3.30pm.

Fairtrade was created as an alternative way of doing business by offering a better deal for producers in developing countries. It is based on partnership, which means that the interests of farmers and workers are just as important as other commercial considerations.

The Hackney Fairtrade Group, which was set up in 2008 to promote the ethos to local businesses and organisations, will talk about their work and host a question session in the Mare Street cinema following the show. It is one of a number of activities being held in Hackney to promote Fairtrade Fortnight, which runs between 23 February and 8 March.

This year, it focusses on the impact of Fairtrade and asks people to 'shine a spotlight on the producers who grow the products we love'.

The Hackney Fairtrade Group will have also have a stall in Broadway Market on 7 March where residents can taste Fairtrade products, talk to the group about the movement, and play a part locally by buying Fairtrade products in the borough.

Schools will also be taking part in the fortnight, including Skinners' Academy, N4, which will be running a Fairtrade chocolate shop.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "Fairtrade Fortnight is an opportunity to commit to a more ethical way of shopping and trading."

The Hackney Fairtrade Group would like to start a directory of businesses which stock Fairtrade products. For more info, e-mail: fair.trade@hackney.gov.uk

Save money on energy bills for Hackney Homes tenants

VULNERABLE tenants could see significant savings to their energy bills as a result of a pioneering green project by Hackney Homes.

The Green Estates scheme, in partnership with Climate Energy, provides free, personalised and independent energy advice to older and vulnerable residents including those who do not have English as their first language.

After a successful launch on four estates, the scheme has now expanded to eight estates. As part of the scheme, information sessions are held for residents on estates.

Tenants are offered free energy monitors and an opportunity to book a home visit from an energy saving expert. Information on special discounted fuel tariffs and details of grants to help with fuel debt are also available.

More than 200 tenants across the eight Green Estates are set to benefit from face-to-face, energy saving home visits.

Resident Osman Keser said: "I learnt a lot from the energy advice session. The new monitor allows me to control the amount of energy I use throughout my house."

Molly Parkin's Playground

Until 21 March, Forman's Smokehouse Gallery, Stour Road, E3

OF ALL the entries on Molly Parkin's CV – including selling her paintings at the Tate Gallery, making hats for 60s boutique Biba and becoming an award-winning fashion editor – 'sexual adventurer' is probably the most unique.

Molly's extraordinary journey from the Welsh Valleys to bohemian muse is detailed in her autobiographical exhibition at Forman's Smokehouse Gallery, Hackney Wick. Entitled 'Molly Parkin's Playground', the 83-year-old says it will explore all facets of her 'amazing life' – from learning to paint in 1949 to sleeping with hundreds of men in the 60s and 70s – and has subtitled it, suggestively, 'my top-shelf shop'. Now celibate, she focuses her time on creating art. You can catch some of it, as well as a taste of her adventures, sexual and otherwise, until next month.

Competition

Win tickets to 'Pride and Prejudice' at the Rosemary Branch Theatre

SOME of Jane Austen's most popular characters are set to tread the boards at the Rosemary Branch Theatre, with the adaptation of her classic novel 'Pride and Prejudice'.

Last year's production of 'Jane Eyre' was celebrated as 'fringe theatre at its best' by The Stage magazine. Now, director Bryony J Thompson has turned her talent for adaption to the story of the five unmarried Bennet sisters and their quests for love, complicated by the expectations of the era and the timeless obstacle of a pushy mother.

A cast of seven recreate all the characters, from the complicated Lizzy, sweet-tempered Jane, and silly Lydia, to their admirers the proud Mr Darcy, affable Mr Bingley, rakish Mr Wickham, and ridiculous Mr Collins. The performance runs from 10 March to 4 April, 7.30pm on Tuesday-Saturday; and 6pm on Sundays. Tickets cost £13/£11 (concessions) except on Tuesdays when all tickets are £10. For more info, visit: www.rosemarybranch.co.uk/

Hackney Today is giving away two pairs of tickets to the show. Send your entry to Pride and Prejudice competition, Hackney Today, Communications, Room 82, Hackney Town Hall, Mare Street, E8 1EA; or e-mail: htnews@hackney.gov.uk by 12pm on 4 March. Submissions must include an address and contact number. Winners will be pulled out of a hat.

Peddling

4-28 March, Arcola Theatre, Dalston, E8

IT'S a long way from Harry Potter to Hackney. Nevertheless, Harry Melling – the actor who played Dudley Dursley in the hit film franchise – is bringing his first piece of theatre to the Arcola in March. 'Peddling', a one-man play written and performed by Melling, sold out when it premiered at the HighTide Festival in Aldborough and again during its off-Broadway tour in the States. Transferring to the Arcola for its London debut, the play centres around a peddler, known only as Boy, who wakes up, lying in the grass with a firework in his hand and no idea how he has ended up there. To answer that question, he must retrace his story, via the doorsteps of privileged Londoners and the cracks that swallow thousands of young people every year.

An exploration of family, identity and the 6,000 Londoners who sleep rough every night on the city's streets, 'Peddling' runs from 4 to 28 March. There will be a gala performance on 19 March, with proceeds going to the charity Kids Company to fund its playwriting and performance course.

Women's History Month

Throughout March & April, various venues

MARCH seems an appropriate time for Women's History Month, reflecting on a trajectory towards freedom and equality that has included a conspicuous amount of, well... marching.

In Hackney, women artists, activists, writers, performers, community groups and organisations are celebrating with a remarkably diverse range of events. Cinema and arts venue Rich Mix marks the month with a four-week programme, starting on 6 March and a one-off showcase from Tamasha Theatre. In 'Mothers and Daughters', Tuyen Do and Elena Procopiu explore relationships between generations. The Clapton Salvation Army is hosting 'How I See It', an exhibition of large banner artworks by Alix Edwards and 'Art in the Community', which runs from 3 March to 9 April. There will also be a free art workshop on 13 March.

Meanwhile, a group show at the Darnley Gallery, E9, examines the thorny issue of how women view themselves. 'MMMother' runs from 23 to 27 March.

At the Worldwrite Centre, E5, documentary film 'Sylvia Pankhurst: Everything Is Possible' examines the life and impact of this East End suffragette. The screening is on 5 March.

Lastly, Hackney Central Library, E8, is hosting an exhibition exploring art's relationship with protest. 'What I Love About Summer' by Alix Edwards runs from 4 March to 30 April. For more info, visit: www.alternativearts.co.uk

New community links

HACKNEY Community College (HCC) has celebrated the official launch of a partnership providing unprecedented opportunities for young Orthodox Jewish people with learning difficulties and disabilities.

Students, parents, teachers and community partners gathered to mark the opening of a new facility at Brenner Jewish Community Centre, in Stamford Hill. It was developed through a collaboration between HCC and Jewish charity Kisharon, which provides support for people with learning difficulties.

“We're opening a pathway for young people with learning disabilities and difficulties to develop their independence”

Dr Beverley Jacobson, the charity's Chief Executive, said: “Today is a celebration. We're not only opening a college, we're opening a pathway for young people with learning disabilities and difficulties to develop their independence.

“With HCC, we have built upon a really leading edge provision for people with special needs.”

Students, aged between 16 and 25, study in specially equipped rooms, including a kitchen with specially-designed appliances that accommodates people with varying levels of disability.

Ian Ashman, Principal of HCC, said: “Everyone who has helped to make this happen shares a great passion for meeting the needs of the community.”

Staff from HCC's specialist team visit the centre three days a week, teaching classes that focus on skills such as maths for everyday needs, literacy and practical skills for work and life. Students also follow Torah studies, central to the Orthodox Jewish culture.

Bella Sharer, whose 24-year-old son Chaim Boruch Sharer attends the classes, said: “I am humbled to think of the efforts made for the benefit of my son.

“I am really grateful to Kisharon and to HCC for their determination to bring structure into our children's lives.”

Children learn about the world of work with Fudge the dog

By Anne-Marie Oni-Olusola

CHILDREN from St Dominic's Catholic Primary School, E9, enjoyed an unusual visit from Fudge the dog and its owner Ruth Thomas on behalf of charity Dogs Trust.

Ruth introduced her Lurcher Fudge, who is four years old, the same age as many of the children, and explained how the charity looks after dogs who have no home. Ruth then talked about the best ways to care for dogs, and the role staff members at the Trust play, including feeding and grooming, ensuring the dogs have toys to play with and plenty of exercise.

Pupils Jemima Lolo, Kevin-Prince Gomez, Favour Robert, Ryan Escobar and Alyanna Cadby helped Ruth illustrate her talk by taking it in turns to pick one of Fudge's toys or a piece of equipment that is used to look after her, out of a large carrier bag.

Ruth and Fudge were among several guests at the school on 3 February as part of Work Week, a programme developed and delivered by education charity Inspire! to teach primary school children about the world of work. The programme is one of Inspire!'s most successful, providing tailored lesson plans and workplace visits for primary schools.

Grasmere Primary School pupils wore hats to raise money for charity

Where's woolly? Grasmere pupils get their hats on for charity

By Anne-Marie Oni-Olusola

CHILDREN from Grasmere Primary School, N16, wore colourful hats to help raise money for a charity which supports homeless people.

Pupils and teachers at the school wore bobble hats, beanies and berets to class in return for a donation to St Mungo's Broadway, which has a hostel on Mare Street.

Youngsters also held a collection and ran an assembly at the school last month to help raise £500 to support homeless people rebuild their lives.

Headteacher Mark Perrington said: “We are delighted to be working with and supporting St Mungo's Broadway. It is important for children to understand the importance of supporting others and how the work of charities greatly benefits individuals, families and the local and wider communities.”

St Mungo's Broadway, which is a community housing association, provides a bed and support to more than 2,500 people a night who are either homeless or at risk of sleeping rough.

Opportunities for all

A WEEK-long programme of free activities and events to help young people develop skills to forge successful careers is being launched next month.

Hackney Opportunities Week starts on 2 March with five days of free activities, workshops and events designed to equip young people with the skills to successfully search for, apply and interview for a job.

As part of the Council-run scheme, the young people will also have the chance to find out more about the new Hackney Opportunity Hub (pictured) that opened this month in Shoreditch.

It is home to the Council's Ways into Work team, which helps unemployed residents find full or part-time work.

The hub has a suite of free computers, Wi-Fi access, and staff on hand to provide employment support and coaching.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: "Some 9.4 per cent of people aged 16 and over in Hackney are unemployed, with some young people feeling that living and working in Hackney is beyond reach when they leave school.

"We hope that with the launch of the first Hackney Opportunities Week many young people across the borough will gain the support, skills and confidence to succeed when taking the first step onto the employment ladder and embarking on a career in the borough and beyond."

Hackney Opportunities Week highlights include:

News in brief

Youth hub fun day

YOUNG Hackney's Forest Road youth hub is set to host a family fun day on 28 February.

It is the flagship hub of five Council-run youth centres that offer different activities throughout the week for young people, aged eight to 19, or 24 for residents with a disability.

The fun day is a chance for families to find out about the full range of services on offer at the centre, with entertainment for kids and sports sessions.

There will also be stalls and workshops run by organisations from Dalston Children's Network, giving careers and employment advice.

The free fun day, with refreshments, face painting and a raffle, is set to take place from 12noon to 3pm.

Media charity hits Hackney

A CHARITY that works with vulnerable young people to teach them media skills, has set its sights on Hackney's students.

Exposure, best known for its youth magazine, has secured funding to run workshops in creative writing, graphic design, and filmmaking for young people from the borough, aged between 13 and 21, or up to 25 for those with disabilities.

Students will have the chance to see their work published in Exposure's magazine and on its website.

Meena Sears, 14, a pupil at Mossbourne Community Academy, said: "It's great that Exposure is coming to Hackney. It's a fantastic opportunity for young people to get involved in the media and take the first steps towards a professional career." For more info, visit: exposure.org.uk

Young people Rep-Present

By Dila Tumer

SEVEN teams of teenagers from five Hackney schools presented innovative community improvement project plans to a panel of judges at the Rose Lipman Building on 4 February.

The event, called Rep-Present, was organised by youth charity Envision. It is one of a series of skills development challenges that students complete as part of a schools-based social action programme 'Community Apprentice'. Themes varied from tackling homelessness to decreasing youth unemployment. The teams of 16 to 17 year-olds got up in turns to showcase their ideas.

Paul Akintan, 17, said: "It's interesting because it gets the youth's voices heard – that's why I like it so much."

Funding was given to all seven teams. For more info, visit: www.envision.org.uk

Using your local health services over the winter

Don't just go to hospital – if you feel unwell there are many ways to get advice or treatment.

Self-care

Hangover, sore throat, coughs, colds

- The best place for you is at home in the warm - rest and drink plenty of non-alcoholic fluids
- Plan ahead - stock up on plasters, paracetamol, aspirin and indigestion remedies

Your local pharmacy

Diarrhoea, painful cough, headache, other minor ailments, emergency contraceptives

- Your local pharmacist can give you expert, confidential advice and treatment for a range of minor illnesses or injuries - many of them are open every day of the holiday and you do not need an appointment
- Plan ahead - ask your local pharmacy about their opening times, find out online at www.cityandhackneyccg.nhs.uk

Your GP

Ear pain, back ache, vomiting, depression, long-term conditions (e.g. diabetes, asthma)

- Your GP is the first place to go to for illnesses that won't go away
- For urgent appointments contact the surgery first thing in the morning, for non-urgent appointments book a week ahead
- You can ask for a telephone consultation with a doctor or nurse
- Plan ahead - make sure you have enough prescribed medicines to last you over holiday time

Out of hours GPs

If your GP surgery is closed but you need to speak to a doctor, you can call Hackney's out of hours GP service, CHUHSE, on 020 8185 0545. They will be able to offer you advice or, if required, arrange an urgent appointment. Open 6.30pm – 8am on weekdays and all day on weekends and public holidays.

NHS 111

You feel you need medical help or advice fast but are unsure what to do and don't think it's a 999 emergency

- Call if you don't have a GP, can't access a GP or don't know who else to call
- The service is available 24 hours a day by calling 111
- You will speak to a trained adviser, supported by nurses and paramedics, who will talk you through your symptoms and advise on what to do next

Homerton Hospital

Accident and Emergency - choking, severe chest pain, bleeding that won't stop, loss of consciousness, struggling to breathe, stroke

- Provides urgent treatment for serious, life-threatening conditions all day, every day
- Get there yourself if you can, but call 999 for an ambulance if someone is too ill to move, can't breathe or you don't have quick access to transport

Emergency dental treatment

You have an urgent dental problem and your usual dental practice is closed

- Call the Emergency Dental Service on 020 3594 0938 to speak to a dentist to get free advice or arrange emergency treatment

Secret garden snaps

A HACKNEY hospice nurse has won a prestigious, international photography competition, despite only having picked up a camera five years ago.

Carolyn Barber, an advancing practice nurse at St Joseph's Hospice, E8, bagged the 'best newcomer award' in the new shoots category of the International Garden Photographer of the Year competition.

Open to both professional and amateur photographers, the competition had over 20,000 entries this year.

Carolyn was recognised for a photograph entitled 'Is She Local' (pictured, main) showing damsel flies peering over the edge of a leaf in Lee

“The standard of photography is breath-taking, I'm honoured to be among this group”

Valley Park.

She said: "I know a little bush where the damsel flies hang out. I had to get up in the night in the dark, when they are still cold, and wait for sunrise. The timing is really important because as soon as they're warm they fly off."

At St Joseph's, Carolyn works with patients at the end of their lives and those with life-limiting illnesses. She believes that her photos have a therapeutic effect, by bringing the outside world into the hospice. After a photography session in the park, she often comes into work with new pictures to show to patients and colleagues, and her work is displayed around the building.

Michael Kerin, St Joseph's Hospice Chief Executive, said: "Carolyn's work is stunning. We're very proud of her for winning this award and I'm sure there will be many more to come."

The gardens at St Joseph's have been one source of inspiration for Carolyn, who often uses them to observe the behaviour of different insects and animals. However, she said: "My inspiration also comes from all the other photographers who entered this competition."

"The standard of photography is breath-taking and I'm honoured to be among this group."

Carolyn's picture has been published in the 'International Garden Photographer of the Year book', Collection Eight, and will be exhibited at the Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew until 6 April, before touring different venues around the world.

News in brief

Smoking in cars with kids is to be illegal from 1 October

DRIVERS in England will be banned from smoking in their cars if they have children as passengers.

The new law comes into force on 1 October, and aims to protect children from the dangers of second-hand smoke. Over 80 per cent of cigarette smoke is invisible, and opening windows and doors in homes or cars does not remove its harmful effect. Children are especially vulnerable to the dangers of second-hand smoke as they breathe more rapidly than adults, have less developed airways and lungs, and less developed immune systems. Free support to stop smoking is available in Hackney and there is a service especially for pregnant women based at Homerton hospital.

For help to quit smoking, call: 0800 046 9946 or 020 3316 1085; e-mail: smokefreehackney@nhs.net; or visit: www.smokefreehackney.org

Help shape Hackney's GPs and fill out the Patient Survey

RESIDENTS are being urged to take part in a survey that will help their surgery get a better understanding of patient experiences and see where improvements can be made.

The national GP Patient Survey is taking place throughout February and March and uses a randomly selected sample of patients who have visited a surgery in the last six months.

Residents who have been chosen to take part will have received a blue survey form in the post which can be filled in and posted back, or completed online.

The survey includes questions about a range of issues, such as how easy or difficult it is for patients to make an appointment at their surgery, satisfaction with opening hours, the quality of care received from their GP and practice nurses, amongst other things.

The deadline for completion is 27 March. For more info and guidance on how to fill in the survey, visit: <http://gp-patient.co.uk/survey>; or call: 0808 238 5385.

You might not love your old clothes any more, but someone else might.

So instead of throwing them in the bin, use our textile banks.

We even want things that can't be reused like worn out socks, tatty clothes and old bed sheets. 70% of items are sold to raise money for good causes. Everything else is shredded and turned into new items like cloths and blankets.

There are over 100 banks across Hackney.

Publishing as an art form

HACKNEY Archives is currently hosting a fascinating exhibition celebrating independent publications created by artists and collectives based in the borough.

The display has been created in partnership with Banner Repeater, the artist-run reading room and gallery based on platform one at Hackney Downs train station.

'Activating The Archive: an exhibition of artists' publishing in the borough of Hackney' aims to raise the visibility of publishing as an art form. It acknowledges Hackney's printing heritage by presenting contemporary artists' publishing work.

A call was put out between September and November last year asking local artists and artist-led groups to submit works for consideration.

Books, pamphlets, and other formats that focus on creative ideas around the form of the book, art and writing were received, which expand the idea of how publishing might be creatively approached.

Books made or conceived by artists as artworks in themselves have a long history. The works of poet William Blake in the 18th century are examples, as are those published by William Morris from the Kelmscott Press; three copies of which are held in Hackney Archives.

There has long been a history of alternative publishing in the borough too, with such titles as 'Hackney Against the Cuts', 'The Workers' Circle', and 'Hackney Peoples' Press', as well as the many publications produced over the years by Centerprise, all held by Hackney Archives.

Books are, of course, meant to be read, and those in this exhibition are no different. Visitors can handle the items to explore the ideas that the artists worked with in creating their very individual publications. Some items are unique, some are part of small editions, all are connected in some way to living or working in Hackney.

The exhibition also aims to show how archive collections are always changing, constantly being added to with material from today, not just dusty old documents from centuries ago, although they are important too.

Some of the exhibits will be chosen for permanent preservation in the Local Studies Collection, as well as being added to Banner Repeater's own digital archive, so that in years to come future generations will be able to see how artists of today interpreted the idea of what a book can be.

'Activating The Archive' is supported by the Arts Council England. The exhibition is on until 25 April. The Archives is closed for stocktaking until 3 March.

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections took place in May 2014.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see. Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR JULES PIPE

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney who is elected annually from among the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Sharon Patrick.

A special recipe for Fairtrade Fortnight www.fairtrade.org.uk/fortnight

THIS issue's recipe has been devised to mark Fairtrade Fortnight, which runs between 23 February and 8 March. To celebrate, we asked one of the newest members of the Hackney Fairtrade Steering Group, Tracey Primus (pictured on the left, with friend) from Victoria Park, to tell us her best Fairtrade recipe.

Fairtrade banana bread

Makes 12 portions

Preparation time 20 mins
Cooking time 1.5 hours

Ingredients

- 225 g (8oz) self-raising flour
- 100 g (4oz) butter
- 150 g (5oz) Fairtrade caster sugar
- 450 g (1lb) Fairtrade bananas
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs
- 175 g (6oz) mixed dried fruit.

Method

- Pre-heat the oven to 180°C/350°F/Gas Mark 4
- Peel and mash the bananas, and then mix all the ingredients except the dried fruit together. Use a food processor, or do this by hand in a basin
- When it's all thoroughly mixed, add the dried fruit
- Spoon the mixture into a 1kg (2lb) non-stick loaf tin
- Spread it out evenly and bake for one-and-a half hours.

Fairtrade is a commitment to a better deal for producers in developing countries and making sure they get a good price for a good product. The Hackney Fairtrade

Steering Group will have a stall in Broadway Market on 7 March where residents can taste Fairtrade products and talk to group members about the movement.

Have your say on improving access on Marlborough Avenue

THE Council is asking residents to give their views on proposals to improve Marlborough Avenue for cyclists.

The road, between London Fields and Haggerston, is a location where cycle access is restricted due to gates at both ends.

As a way to open up the route, the Council is proposing to replace the existing access gates with heavy duty lockable bollards; remove the road humps and improve the carriageway; replace all concrete bollards at both entrances with new metal bollards; refresh double yellow lines; install a 'motor vehicles prohibited' sign; and improve the landscaping and plant trees in the open space.

The proposals are part of the Council's Transport Strategy to help cyclists find quieter back streets, and encourage people to use sustainable modes of transport, such as walking and cycling, as alternatives to private car use.

To view the proposals, or complete the survey, visit: consultation.hackney.gov.uk/streetscene/marlborough-avenue-cycle-permeability

The consultation closes on 2 March.

3. The reason for proceeding by way of an Experimental Traffic Order is to assess the effects of providing this new facility.
4. These changes will be introduced for a trial period before consideration is given to whether the provisions of the Experimental Traffic Order should be made permanent.
5. Plans of the proposed measures can be inspected during normal office hours on Mondays to Fridays inclusive until a period of 6 months from the date, on which this notice is published, in the reception area, London Borough of Hackney, Keltan House, 89-115 Mare Street, London, E8 4RU. Further information may be obtained by contacting Helpdesk on 020 8356 2897.
6. The experimental provisions can continue in force for a maximum of 18 months trial period before a permanent Order is considered. Within a period of 6 months from the coming into operation of the Experimental Traffic Order any person may object to the making of a permanent Order. Any objection should be in writing, giving the grounds on which it is made and be addressed to the Assistant Director (Public Realm) at the address given in paragraph 5 above. Any comments in support of the Experimental Traffic Order are also invited during this period.
7. Any person wishing to question the validity of the Experimental Traffic Order or any of its provisions on the grounds that it is not within the powers of the relevant enabling Act or that a requirement of any such enabling Act or of any relevant regulations made there under has not been complied with may, within six weeks from the date on which the Experimental Traffic Order was made, make application for this purpose to the High Court.

Unless otherwise stated all traffic notices are as follows: Dated this 23rd day of February 2015
Tom McCourt, Assistant Director (Public Realm)
(The officer appointed for this purpose)

Were you sent this form?

If you fill it in, you can help improve GP services in Hackney

If you are registered with a GP, you may have been sent the GP Patient survey. This survey is carried out by the Government to find out how well local GP services are serving their patients. If local people fill it in, it helps us here in Hackney to improve your services, including how we support people with long term conditions. It can also affect the level of funding we receive for your services.

The survey can be completed online at:
www.gp-patient.co.uk,
or by sending back the blue-coloured form in the envelope provided. You can call the Ipsos MORI survey helpline on: 0808 238 5387 if you have any questions.

The College of Haringey, Enfield and North East London

Why Choose Us?

Mitchell Brice Creative and Media

Mitchell Brice, who studied Media Production Levels 2 and 3 at the College of Haringey, Enfield and North East London won the London Region VQ Day Learner of the year Award in June 2014. On winning the award Mitchell said:

“I’m thrilled to have been selected as this year’s VQ Learner of the Year for London. Completing a vocational qualification has given me the skills and drive to pursue my career and I’m delighted that this nomination has recognised my hard work. There are so many different training opportunities to choose from and I would highly recommend vocational learning to others.”

Dona Mannaperuma Access to Higher Education Science Diploma

Dona Mannaperuma achieved distinctions in all modules for her Access to Higher Education Science Diploma. As well as developing her study and research skills for university, Donna was also able to improve her English, maths and ICT to successfully meet the demands of a science degree. The Access qualification is recognised by many universities as an ideal qualification leading to degree study. Donna completed her three year BSc Bioscience degree course at London Metropolitan this year and was awarded First Class Honours. Donna said:

“The College’s Access course was so helpful for me. It prepared me for degree study and it is well respected so I received offers from good universities.”

Francesca Banton Prince’s Trust

Francesca Banton was ambitious and motivated to achieve but struggled to focus on which career path she wanted to pursue. Francesca felt her place was in banking and wanted to begin building her career with Barclays. Francesca said:

“It’s so nice to know that there are people in the world still willing to help you achieve your dreams and better yourself. GTAC helped by assigning me one of their loveliest and most kind-hearted mentors. She helped me realise I can do anything I put my mind to and taught me how to believe in myself.”

Our successes:

- Most satisfied College learners in London for the last two years running. FE Choices 13/14 and 12/13
- Fantastic Ofsted report - 'Outstanding' and 'Good'. Ofsted April 2014
- London's Number One Performing College in 2014. Skills Funding Agency Success Rates 12/13
- Over 60% of our learners are in work six months after graduating
- Hundreds of our learners progress to university each year
- 95% of our learners achieve their qualifications
- We have spent £20million at our Centres in Tottenham and Enfield to create excellent College facilities
